

Elfin Abode

John Farrow's cylindrical workshop rises from the misty redwood forest east of Santa Cruz, Calif. Behind the cabinet doors, a propane-fueled generator provides the power.

The gambrel-roofed living quarters are detailed with fish-scale shingles and handcarved trim. Inside, a chain-driven oak elevator built by Farrow ascends to the tiny bedroom.

